

Want to become part of an exciting group of teen leaders interested in art and museums? Apply for the NCMA's Teen Arts Council! You'll see behind the scenes at the Museum, design and facilitate programming for your peers, and create a welcoming and comfortable environment for teens across the state. Applications are due June 23, 2016.

WHAT DO WE DO?

- Develop leadership, public speaking, and visual literacy skills by planning, promoting, and facilitating art activities and gallery experiences for young people in the Museum, including ArtScene, the annual spring teen event.
- Share inspiration and dialogue with your peers in North Carolina and beyond through on-site and virtual meetups with groups of like-minded teens.
- Create art and participate in experimental gallery activities with other TAC members and teen ambassadors.
- Go behind the scenes and learn about careers in art museums.

The Teen Arts Council meets twice a month (first and third Tuesdays) from 4 to 6 pm, September through May, at the NCMA. There will be additional meetings for committees or online discussions on Tuesdays between the official meetings. TAC members are expected to attend all meetings, participate in ArtScene (April 29, 2017), attend a summer kickoff party, volunteer at one Museum event each semester, and do a small amount of follow-up online between meetings.
